Buddha Purnima: Celebrating 'the enlightened one'

- Mandira Herinath

Born into a wealthy family Prince Siddhartha Gautama, was a handsome and clever prince. Confined to the walls of his royal residence, he was to be a prince for the rest of his life. His father King Suddhodhana, who had been foretold Buddha's real purpose, made sure that there was no death or pleasures that could lead him to a life of suffering.

Turned by curiosity one night, the young prince set out to explore life outside the palace. Buddha saw at various points on his journey a sick person, a dead body, an ageing man and a monk. These four sights made Buddha turn inward in search of the truth. With only a white robe and a begging bowl, he set out to seek life's true meaning.

After several years of living in the company of wise spirits, following rigorous practices, he could not find the truth. After years of deep meditation and mastering the delicate art of letting go, one beautiful moon night, under the shade of a peepal tree, Gautama Buddha realised at the highest self and attained enlightenment, came to be called as the 'The Enlightened one'. Today, the Bodhi tree at the Mahabodhi temple in the south of India is visited by many people from all over the world, to pay respects to this great leader and saint.

Buddha Jayanti or Buddha Purnima (26th May) is celebrated to commemorate the birth of the second Buddha, who devoted his life to the service of humanity, through his teachings and giving alms. It falls in the month of Vaishakh, when Devoites of Lord Vishnu too observe a fast on Vaishakh Purnima to attain freedom from all the sins. It is said that Gautama Buddha too attained enlightenment on this day. On this auspicious full moon day, the teachings of the 'awakened one' are discussed, followed by recitations of ancient scriptures, recitations and prayer meets. Rites and rituals of the Buddha are taken up in public processions. People refrain from eating non-vegetarian food and a bowl of milk porridge/Khoer is offered and relished.
